It Takes The Edge Off...

Steve Dewey, M.D. had a thought...

“What if you could make a phaco tip that was less likely to break capsule or damage iris? How would that change cataract and refractive lens exchange surgery?” The answer was, a lot.

Next, the combination of his idea and MST's innovative technology, has produced a phaco tip that, instead of being sharp, has radiused edges to help protect both capsule and as an added benefit, iris, yet, performs like a sharp-edged phaco tip.

The Dewey Radius™ is available in the most popular styles for the most popular machines.

The Dewey Radius phaco tip. It takes the edge off.

Only from MST.
